"To have been a part of the first year of St. Louis High School was a joyful and inspirational experience. May this tremendous beginning augur a bountiful future!

"May the world that sees this school, its graduates, and chroniclers of events such as this yearbook, believe that this institution's goal is to send forth students knowledgeable of life and equipped to help the world disperse the darkness in minds and hearts and souls."

Reverend Monsignor Rogert G. Angelle

ORGANIZATIONS

Improvement, Change, Action: They Were All Done Well

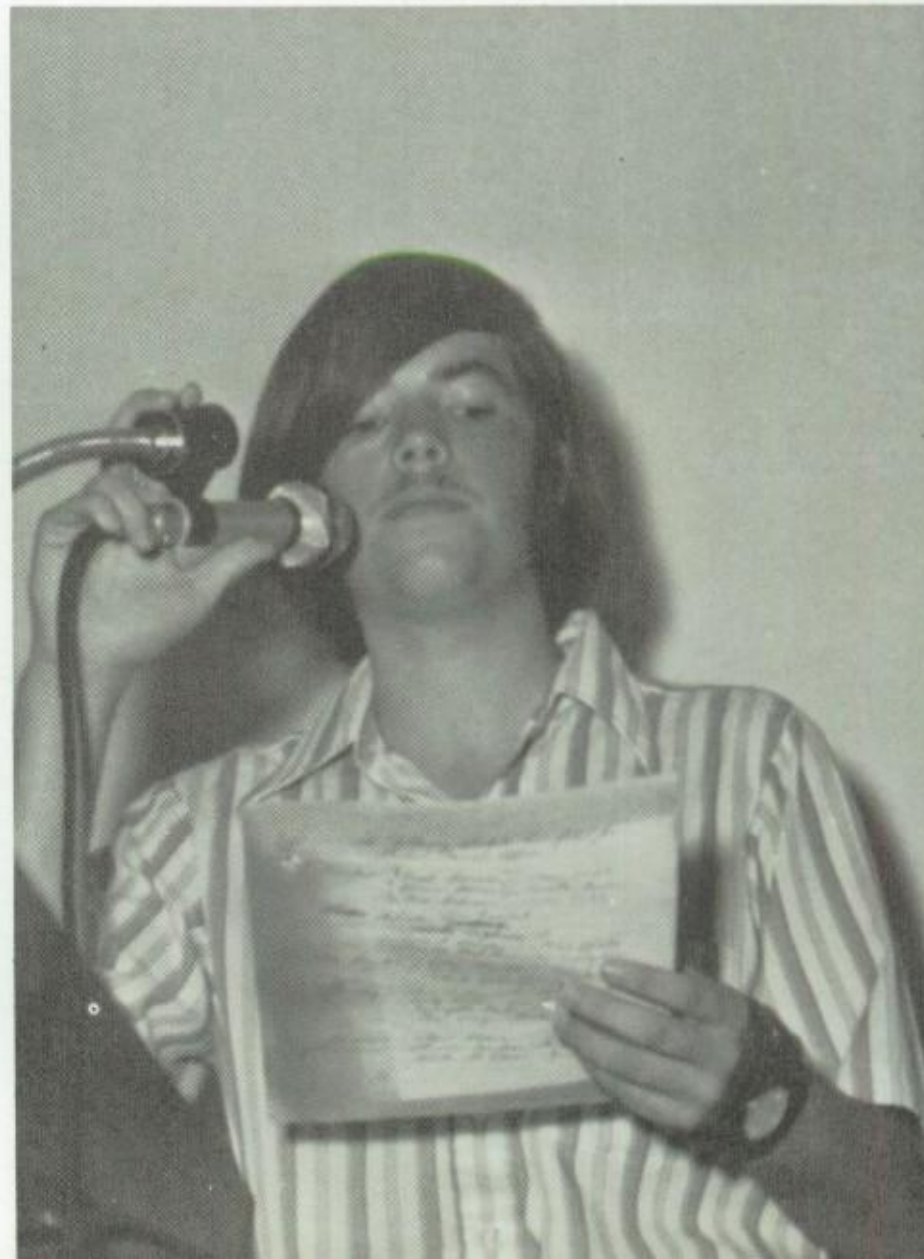

Campaigning was a long and tedious job experienced by all nominees.

Convention delegates discussed candidates nominations.

The announcement of winning delegates brought mixed emotions.

PRESIDENT: Reinnette Morin

As if to establish precedent for action and achievement that would goad future student councils to attempt to even approach their record, the founding Student Councils activities and accomplishments set impressive standards of excellence.

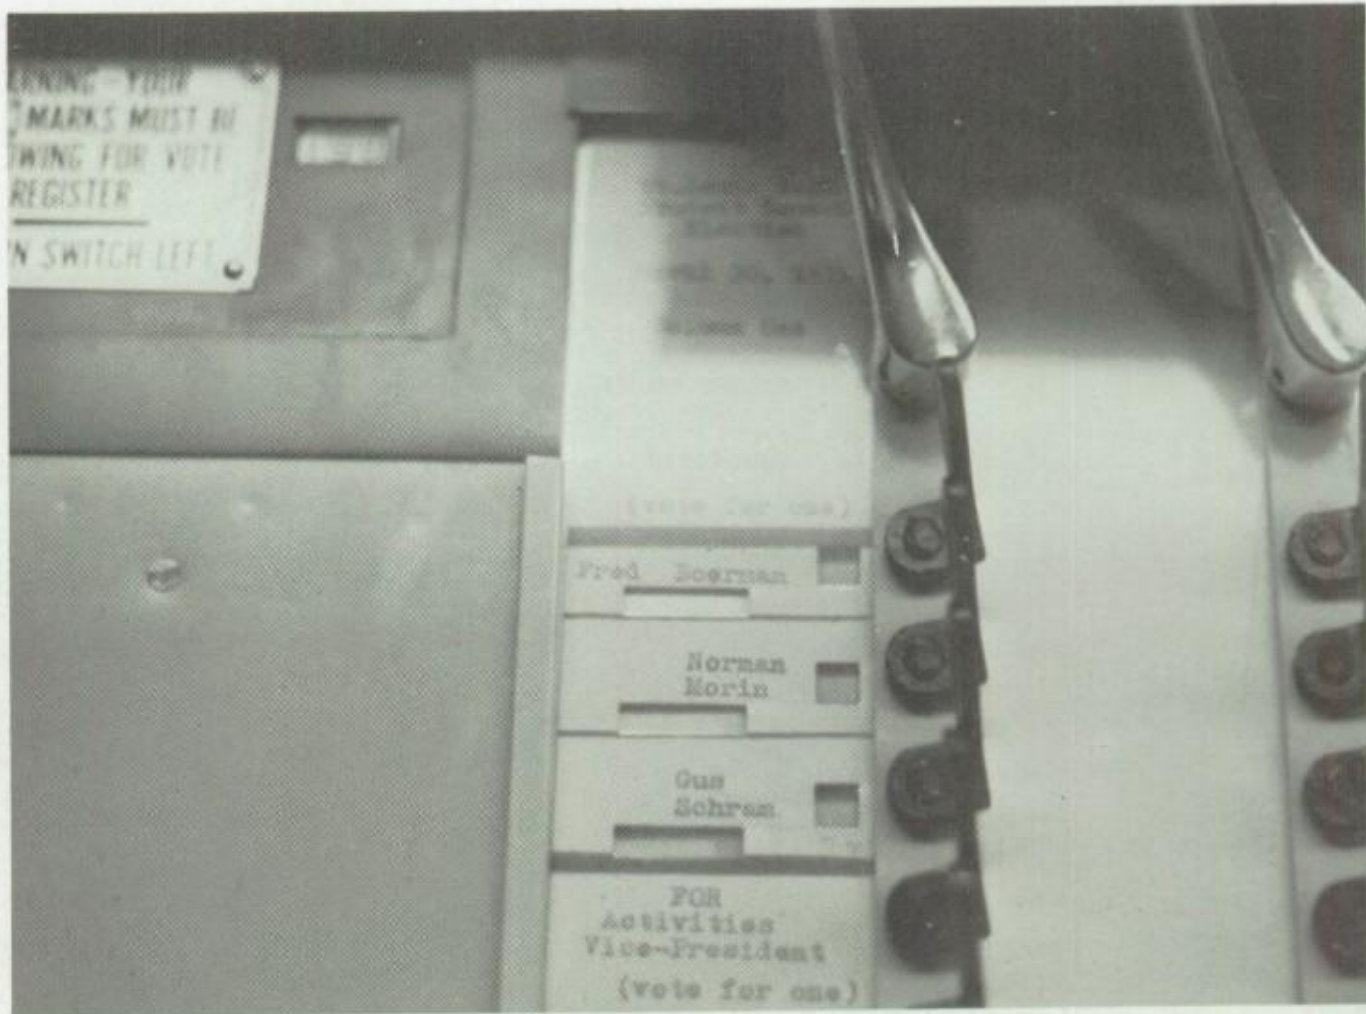

Standards of excellence were recognized by both the television and the press in featuring such projects as the POW's letter-writing project, the remodeling of the Boy's Village recreation room, St. Louis participation in National Student Council Week, and a financially successful Homecoming Week. Standards of excellence promoted action, action that was recognized by Supreme Court Justice Black during consultation in Washington, D. C., on the possibilities of a school court action recognized by the City's other student councils in their requests to involve themselves in the issues of hair, blue jeans, and the Senior Mardi Gras privilege.

Other activities which paved the way of excellence for future student councils were the completion of the alumni file, the revision of the Student Council structure to allow for more student government, the liquidating of all previous debts, and the donation of the flag pole to St. Louis High School in honor of the Senior Class of 1971.

Latin Play Received Superior Rating . . .

The first year of the the St. Louis Latin Club proved to be enjoyable and profitable. The members learned a number of Latin songs, including Christmas songs, and college songs. Some of the members took part in the Foreign Language Festival held at U.S.L. in April. The group presented a Latin play and received a superior rating. In individual readings, James Rhorer and Tommy Keating received excellent ratings. As a final activity, the Latin club, along with the French and Spanish clubs, sponsored a foreign language program for students and parents with selections in the three languages.

The French Club of St. Louis High School began tradition by establishing themselves as "Les Amis." The club's activities included emphasis on Louisiana culture, a trip to Lafayette, La., and participation in the French Foreign Language Festival at USL where numerous awards were won. The purpose of "Les Amis" is to broaden the French student's knowledge of the culture of Louisiana as well as of France.

The members of the newspaper staff worked under the title of The Spirit of Saint Louis. The newly-established Fourth Estate completed four issues and an April newsletter. These issues covered academic, athletic and social news of the school, in addition to literary accomplishments of the students and civic news. Four members of the staff attended the High School Leadership Conference at L.S.U. in Baton Rouge during the 1970 summer to prepare them for work the following year. The newspaper is enrolled in Quill and Scroll, a national journalism society.

The club members received many helpful hints on matters ranging from money-raising activities to running the library efficiently. With this experience, the Library Club should continue to excel in the future of St. Louis.

The first purpose of the Math Club is to promote scholarship in mathematics as an academic subject. The second is to inspire interest in mathematics as a career. The meetings and field trips were designed to meet these purposes. The major activities of the Math Club included plans to attend the state and national conventions, a speaker, and a trip to the McNeese Computer Center. Mr. Roy Price from Kohlmeyer Company explained the intricacies of the stock market. In addition to conducting a tour of the McNeese Computer Center, Dr. Swetharan-yam showed the many jobs that could be performed by computers.

The theme of this first volume of Spectre ("an image from the past") centers around a major school goal: unity from the consolidation of St. Charles Academy and Landry Memorial High. From cover to cover this book's content shows us that to some extent this has been done, and yet much has been left to be done.

This has been not so much a beginning year as a year of transition, a fusion of two into one; we see the quotient of only one-half and the other half has yet to be — in time, with growth. Perhaps this statement could be made of our first graduating Class of '71 and of us who remain behind: "... and the other half has yet to be — in time, with growth."

We chose Spectre as our title because our work is now a shade from the past, an apparition, a chronicling of past growth. We peer out from this past as things that could have been but were not, as things that were but no longer are, and yet as things that are now and will continue to become.

The "spectral staff" under the editorial leadership of Dean Gossen dedicates this volume to what St. Louis and its alumni are capable of becoming.

Very few workers remained behind to finish the book. To Ellen Brendler and Theresa Goudeau, we give our thanks.

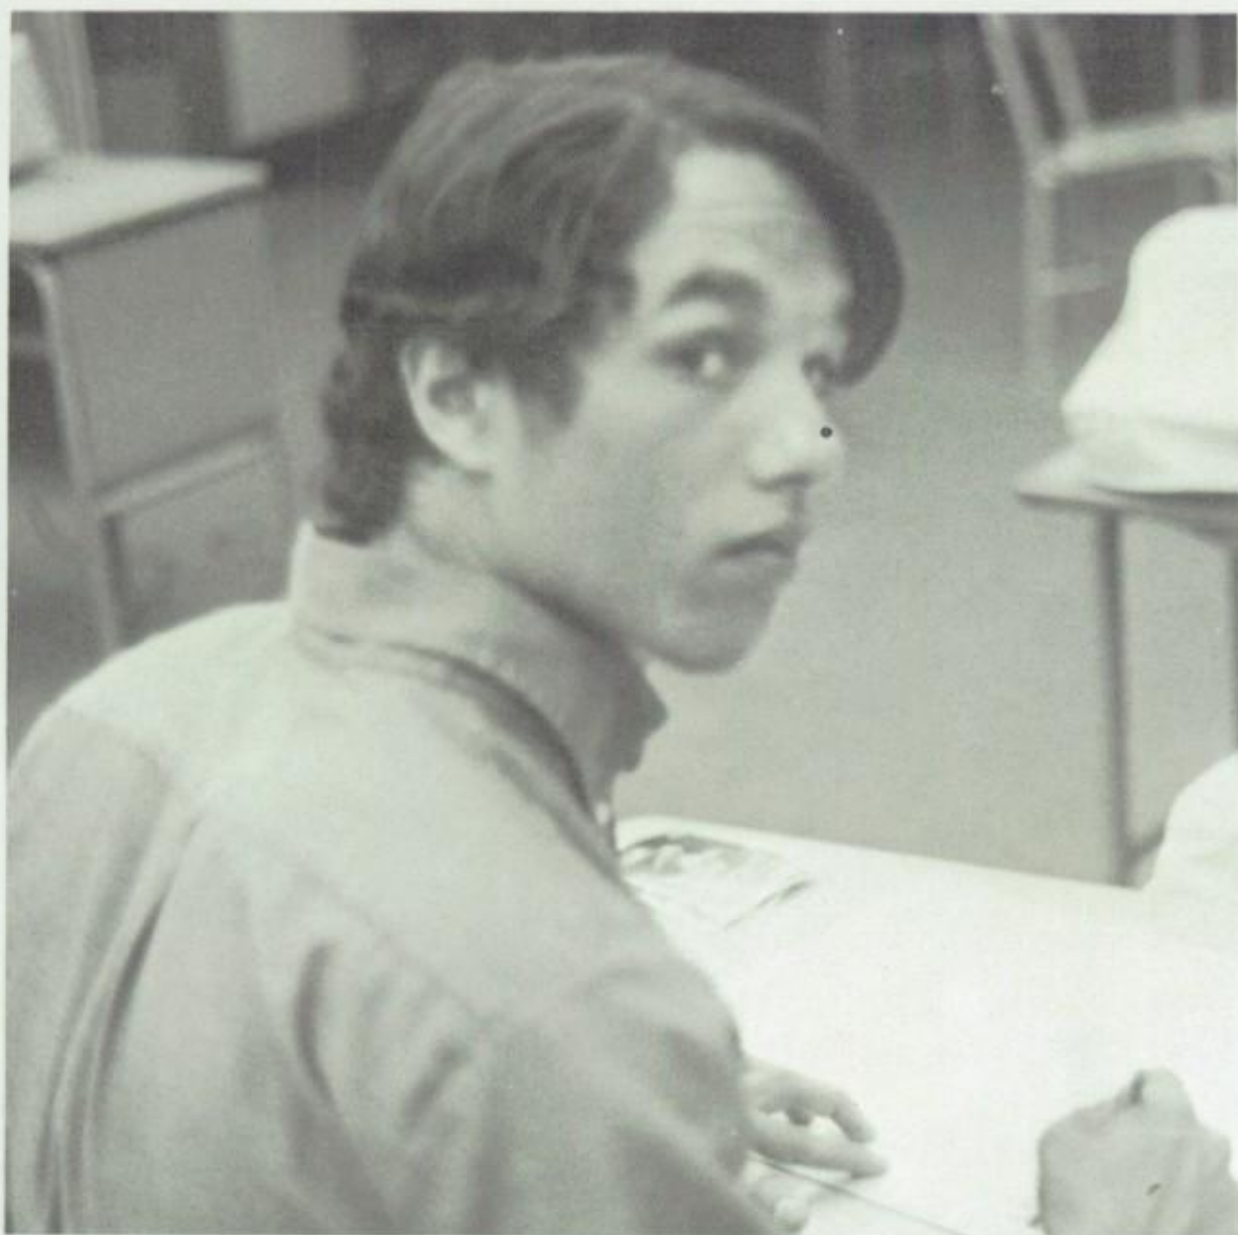

After many hours of concentration, Dean Gossen (our beloved editor) came to a conclusion about yearbook.

NHS Had First Induction Ceremonies

In March 1971, the entire student body of Saint Louis High School beheld the first induction of students into the National Honor Society. Thirty-five new members were presented with their pins.

A few weeks later the officers of the St. Louis chapter were the guests at the induction ceremonies of Goretti High School in Lake Arthur. The reason for their presence there was to aid Goretti High School in reorganizing their chapter of the National Honor Society.

Fr. Metrejean addressed the student body for NHS Induction Ceremonies.

Therese Brendler tapped Mark Broussard into the Society.

Students welcomed Fr. Metrejean as guest speaker for the Induction Ceremonies.

Babs Bodin addressed students during the annual Induction Ceremonies.

The Interact Club showed its concern for the poor of the community by collecting canned foods for the Gulf Assistance Program. In addition to this year-long activity, club members participated in the heart fund campaign and in various cleanup activities on campus. Funds were raised by sponsoring a faculty basketball game against the Washington High School faculty. Serving school and community, the club attempted to live up to its motto: "service above self."

Club members prepared Christmas baskets for the poor of the area.

Vice-president, Luke Papania looked on as the baskets were prepared.

The finishing touches were added to the baskets.

The Spanish Club was composed of students enrolled in Spanish — or previously enrolled in Spanish — and native speakers of the language. Medicine — interesting?

Trying to make it interesting in the Medical Careers Club was not hard. Guest speakers were in order throughout the year, and even though the membership was small, learning came easily, along the line. The purpose of the club was to see whether young people are interested in medicine and a medical career. Tours also helped the club in the knowledge of our medical world.

Various Theatrical Productions Attended

Members of the Drama Club discussed the stock production, Charlie Brown, which came to Lafayette in March.

Drama Club Advisor, Mrs. Marion Bono, and officers finalized plans to attend the production, 1776.

Two Juniors auditioned for parts in Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet.

The new St. Louis Drama Club conducted its meetings with one aim: to develop a better understanding of the theater and to appreciate all forms of the Fine Arts. During the year the members attended various theatrical productions presented both locally and out of town. Several guest speakers were invited to address the group on topics concerning drama.

"We've already come to the end of the first Saint Louis athletic year. I think we had a good one. The football team was very representative: twenty-six guys started out like a ball of fire running through six consecutive district opponents by a total point spread of 159-29. I thought we were really on the way, and then we fell victim to the injury plague. We've lost ten good seniors off of that team and they'll be plenty hard to replace . . .

Bell And Guidroz Secure King And Queen Rats!

Saint Louis, as part of the Mardi Gras celebration, conducted the well-remembered Tacky Day. On this day entertainment and fun are definitely in order. Students dress in everything from potato sacks to women's hosiery. This year Rosalind Bell and John Guidroz were elected tackiest.

With ribbon aloft, Msgr. Angelle became honorary Afro principal.

This spidery harem princess, John Guidroz, was proclaimed King Rat, the tackiest male student.

A casual observer could be found observing others as well as being observed by others.

The King Rat nominees, the worst of the raunchy, were supplemented by Queen Rat nominees. This year's queen was Rosalind Bell.

Gus Schram and Clark Yelverton provided the finishing touches on the props.

On the warm Spring evening of April 24, the first St. Louis Junior Senior Prom was held in the school commons. Through the industrious work of the entire Junior Class, Decorations and props were either brought or made to provide the perfect setting of "A Night In Switzerland." The music was provided by the Repititions of Lake Charles. With all said and done, this was truly a memorable day for the Juniors as well as their Senior guests.

*It Was Fun!
Now We're Sorry
It's Over.*

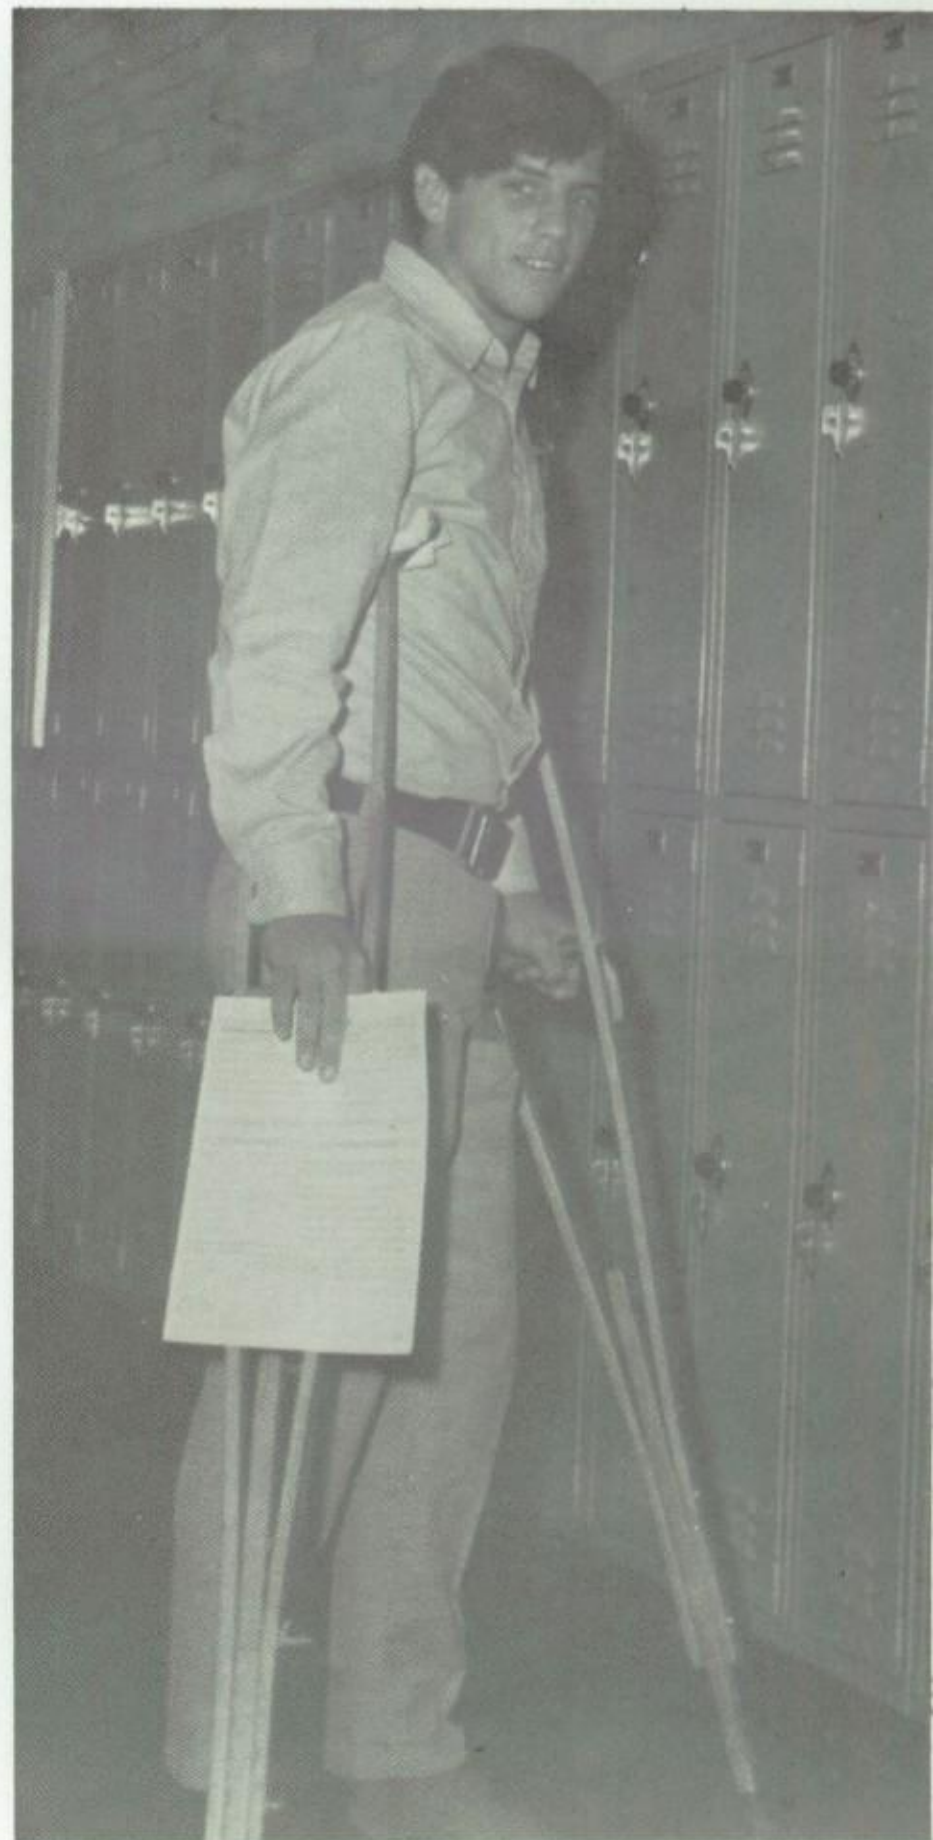

Several times during the year, seniors helped the Gulf Assistance Program.

Janis Joplin is alive and kicking.

Many students managed to escape, and relaxed on the grounds.

The day Jenny got fed up.

On occasion, birthdays were celebrated.

The senior year was not just one of fun. Much hard work went into it.

Retreat shrines were built by the boys. An explanation was given with each shrine.

Harry Leverette was dethroned as tiddledywinks champion.

Saint Louis Graduates Our First Senior Class

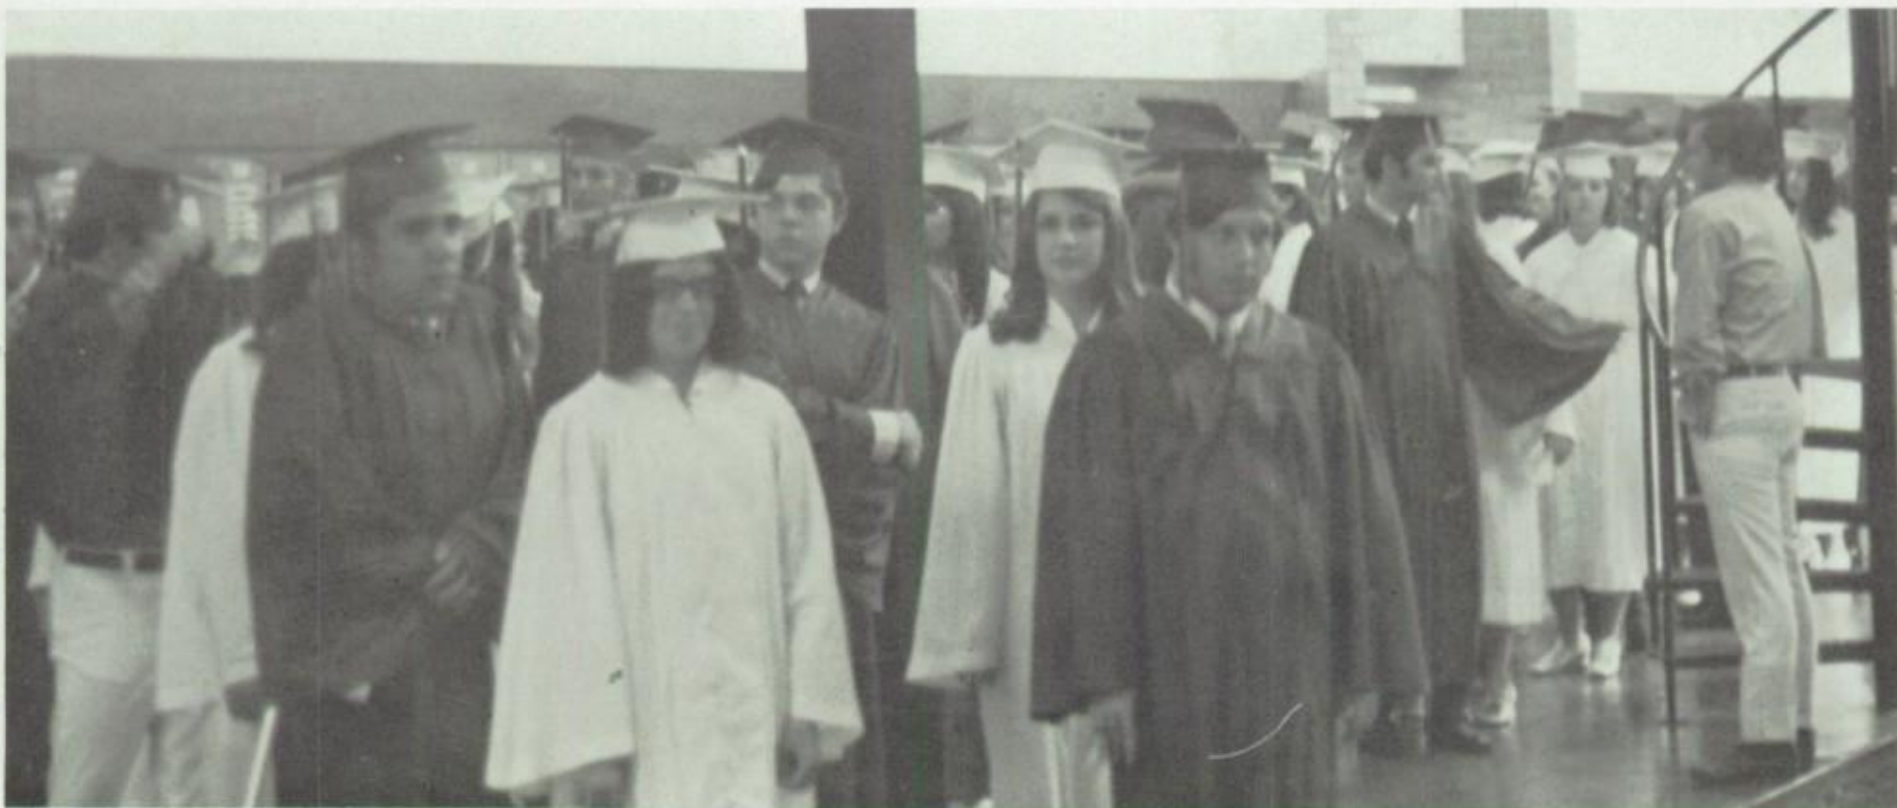

Entering commencement exercises was a moment never to be forgotten by the seniors.

The Best Scholar awards were won by Reinnette Morin and Mike Lanza.

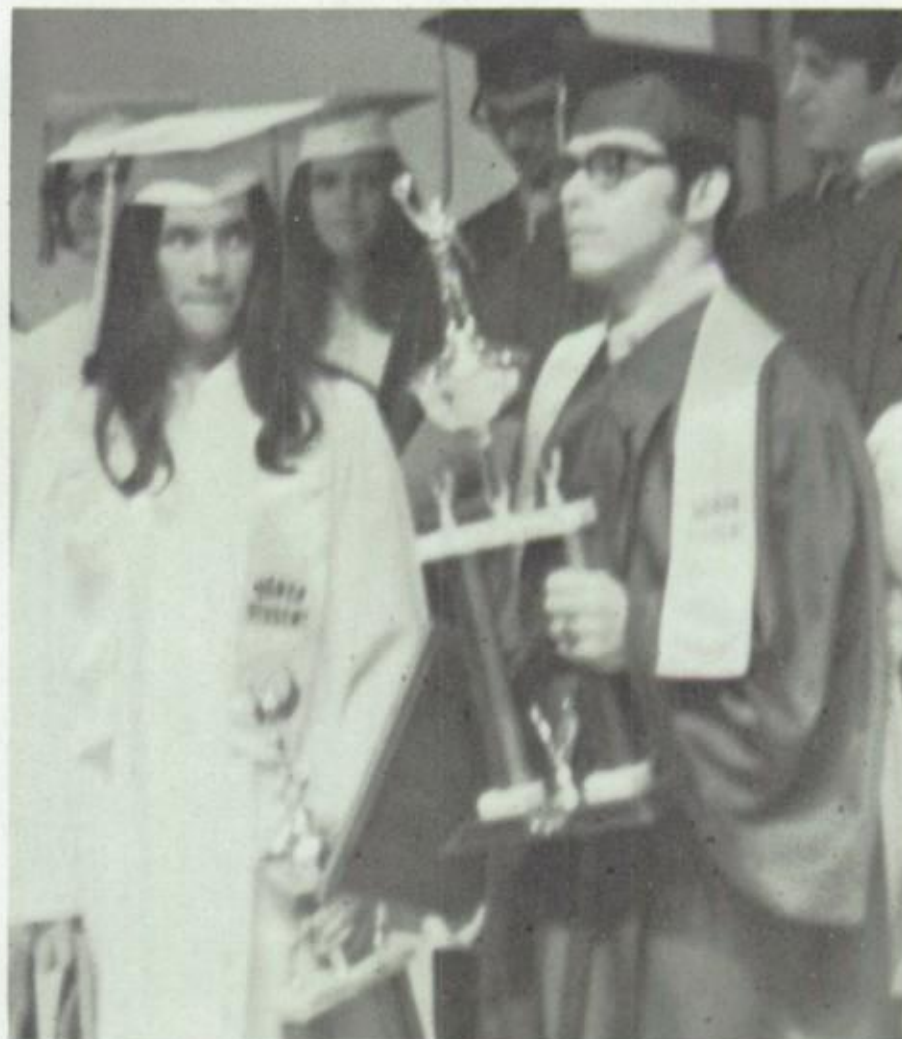

Seniors realized that this moment will never come again.

Getting people averaged by height took as long as the graduation.

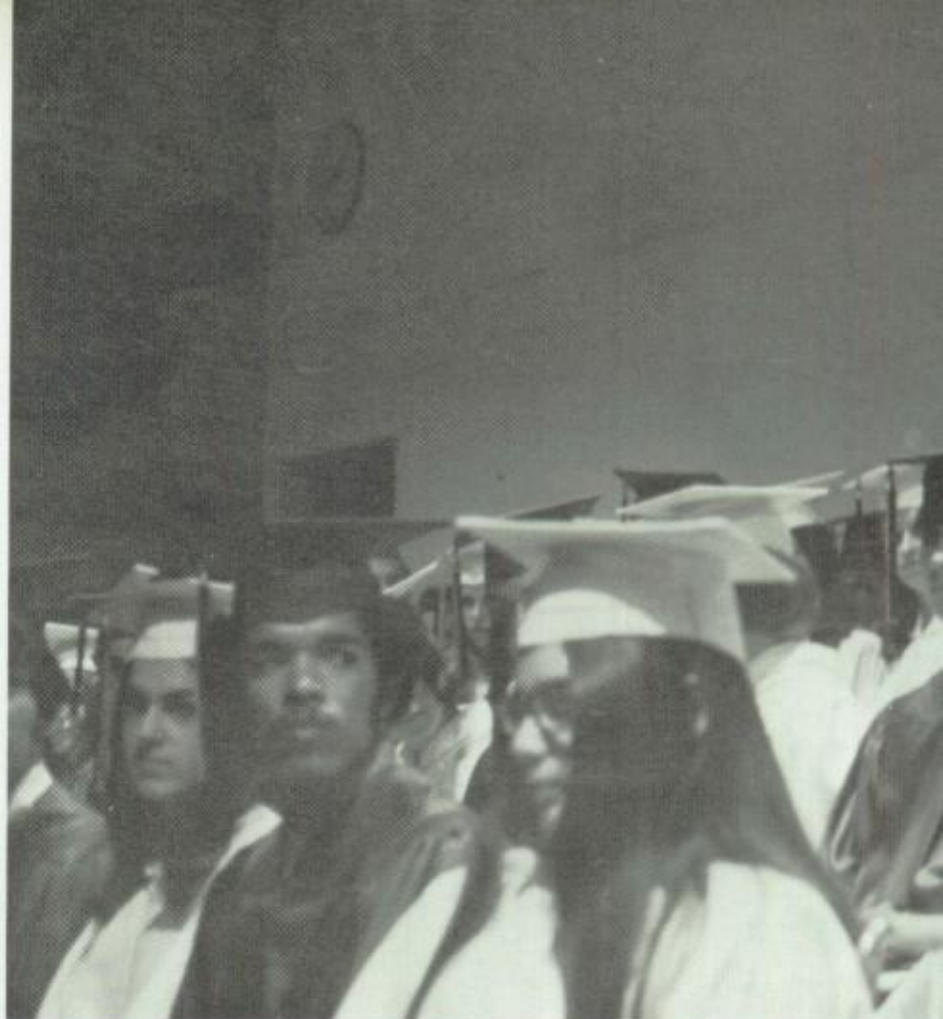

Class spokesman was Miss Reinnette Morin.

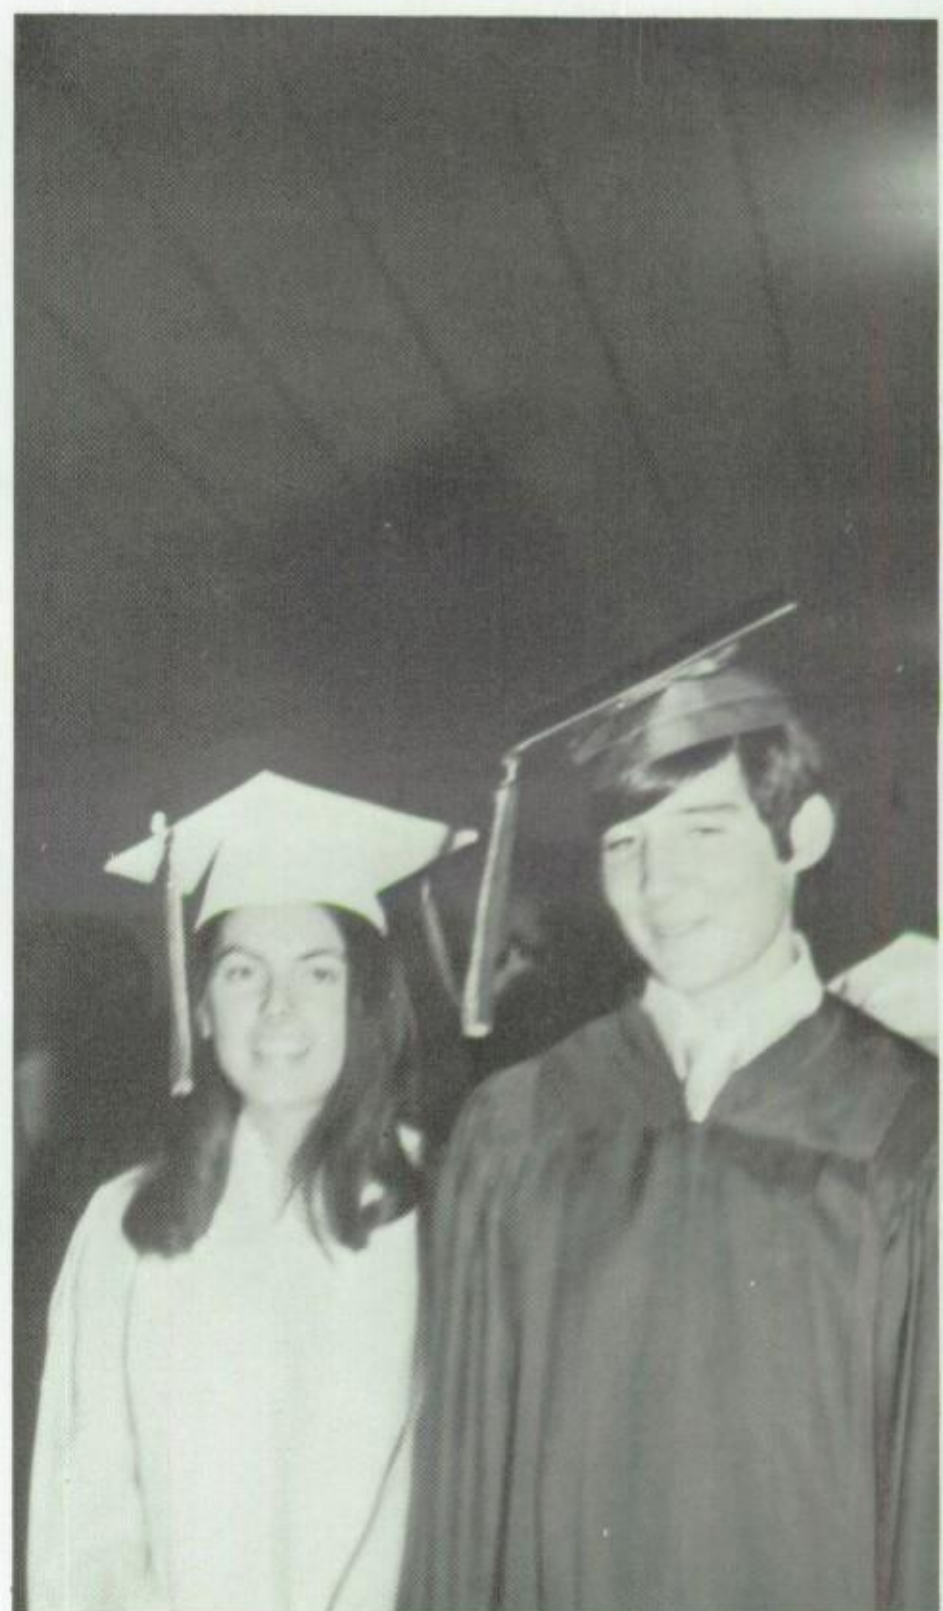

Honor graduates waited for the wheelbarrow to carry out their trophies.

Guest speaker was Monsignor Speyrer.

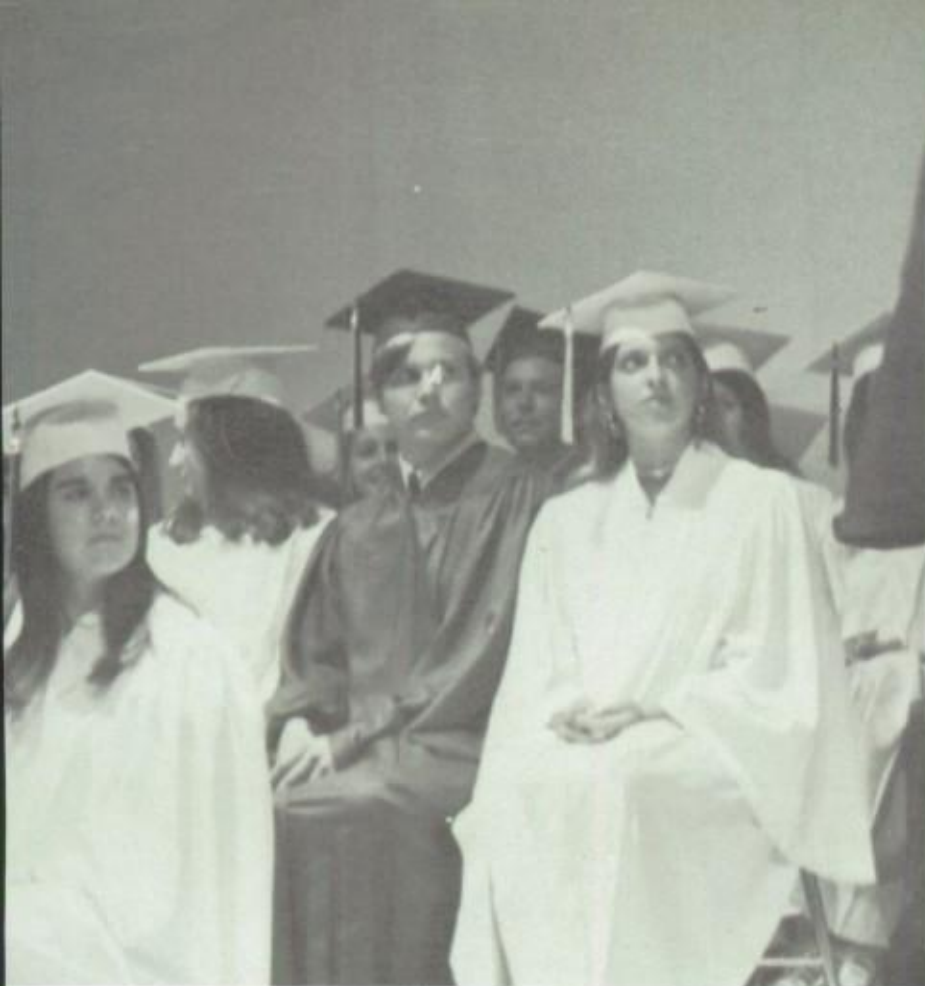

Graduates look on as commencement exercises get underway.

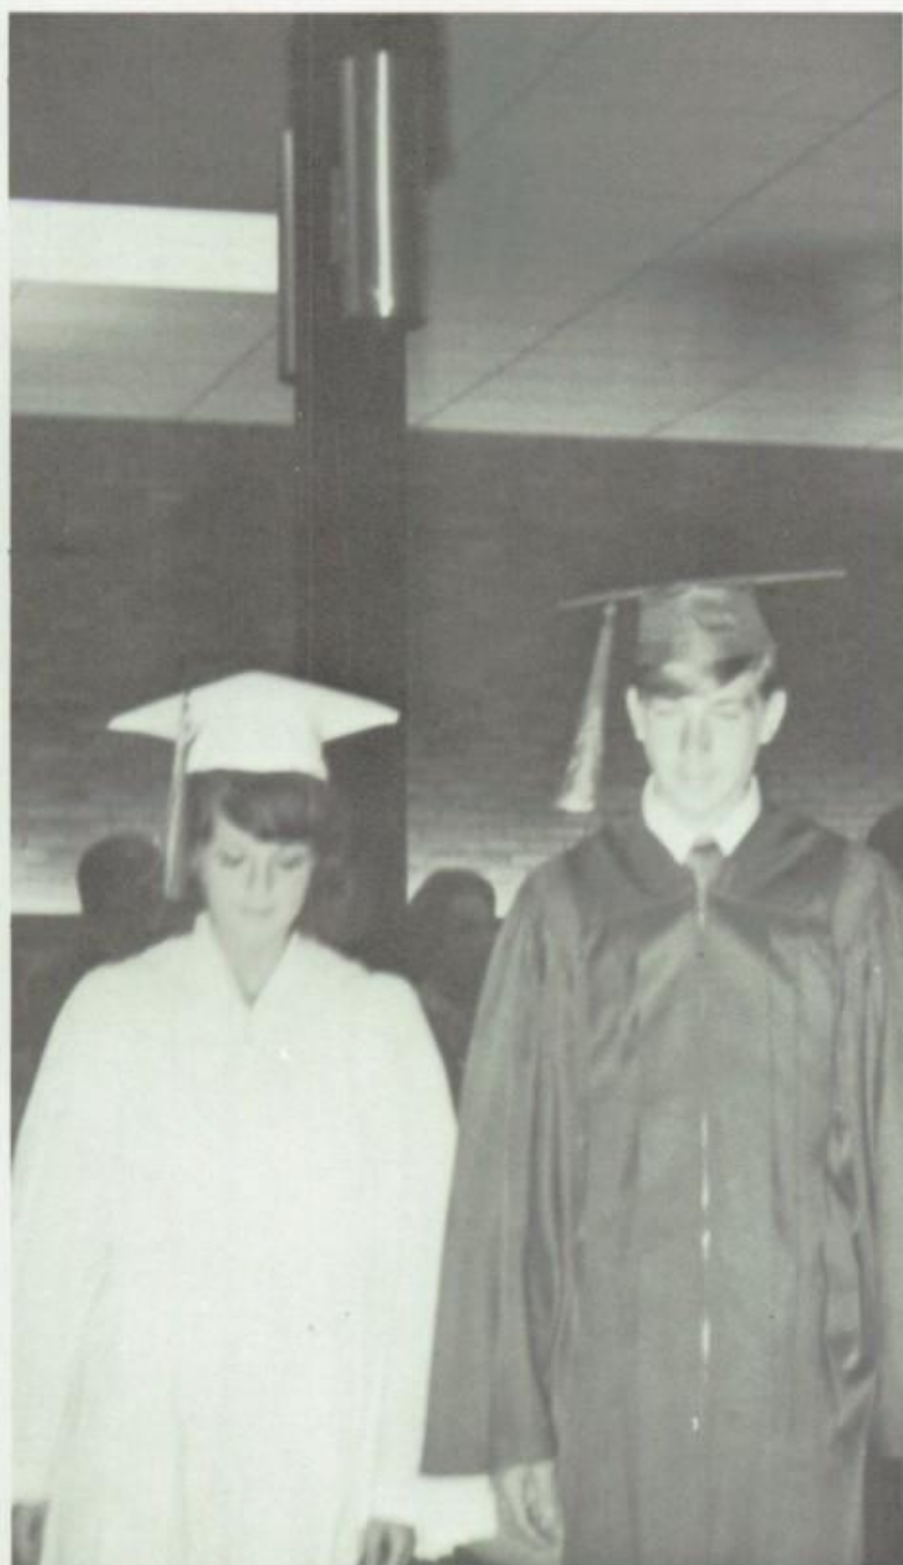

Mr. Handsome, Tom Coffey, shows a little of his radiant charm.

Seniors Rented Lighthouse For Graduation Party

"Remember, tassels are to be worn on the right side."

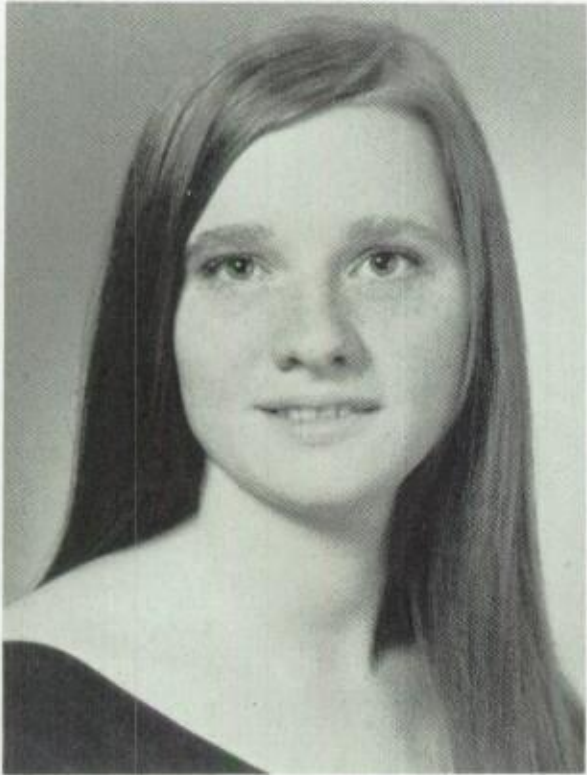

It's over now, but the Lighthouse is just getting started.

Monsignor Louis Boudreaux presented the diplomas.

Joe and David serenade each other between classes.

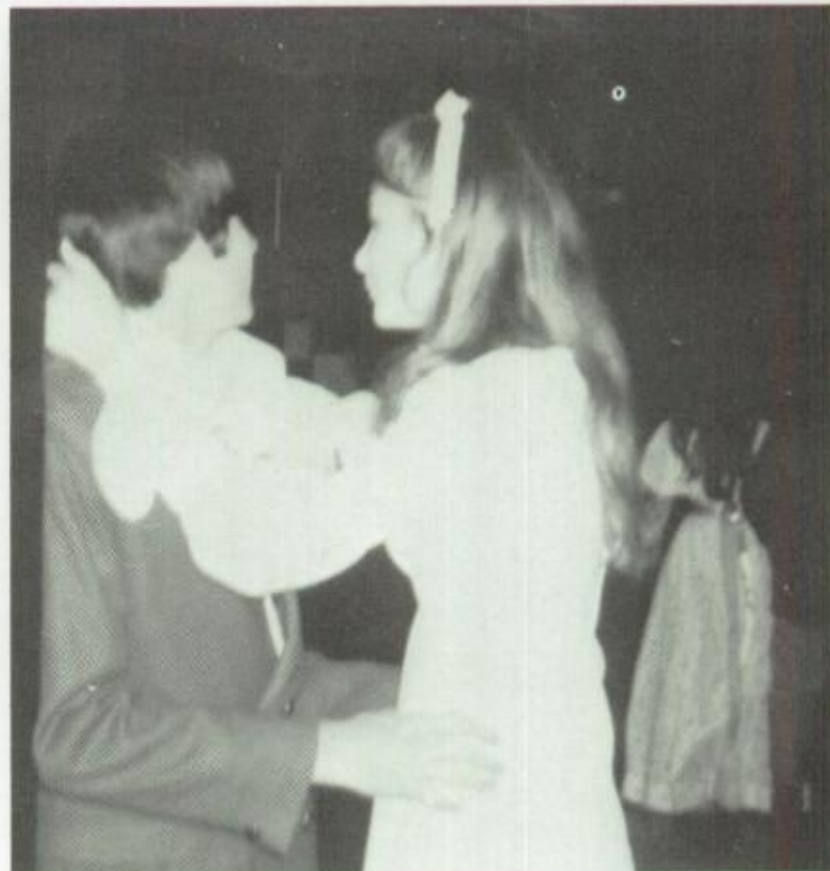

Several of the senior grils participated in the style show.

Overall, a good time was had by all.

Senior parties were long awaited-for.

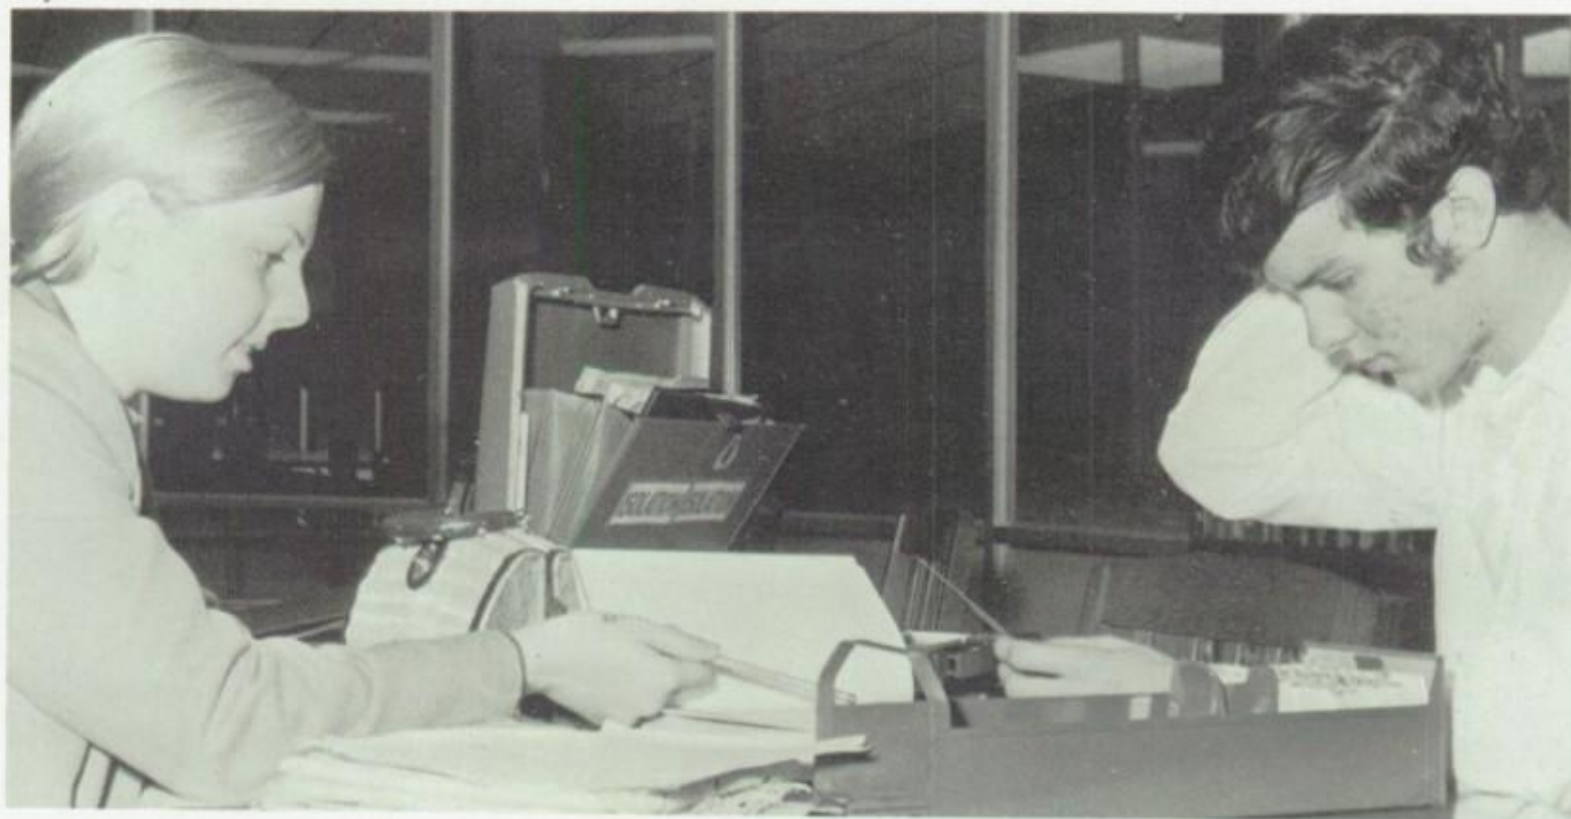

Tom Coffey occupied himself during prom.

Many seniors occupied themselves in very strange ways.

Retreat rooms were small, but adequate.

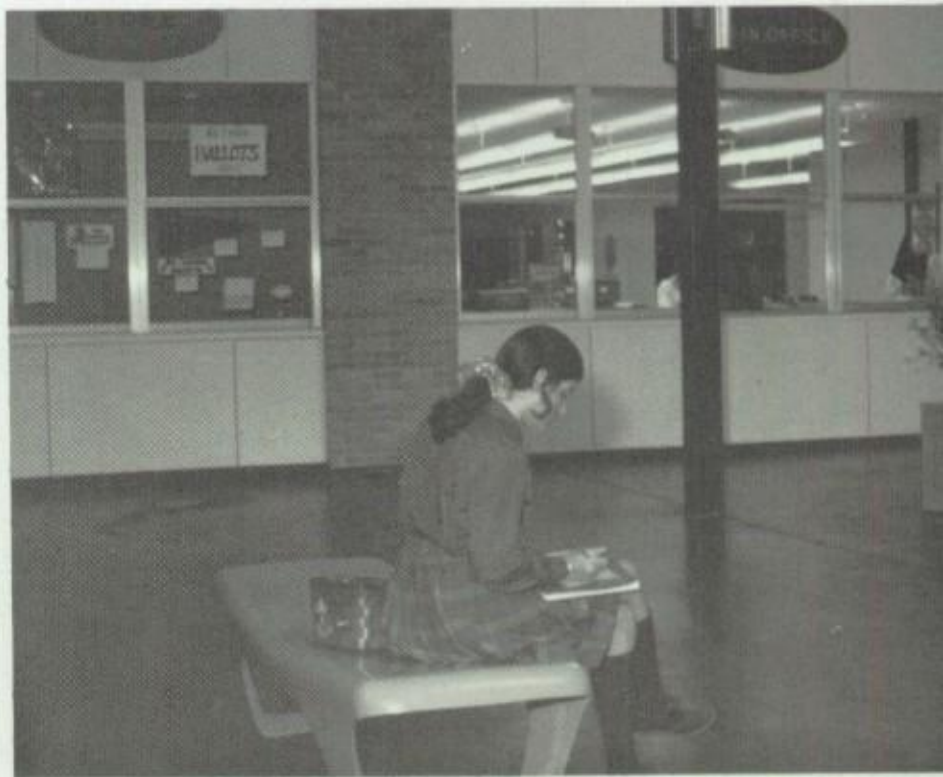

Debate took up most of Therese Brendler's and Mark Broussard's spare time.

One of Dean Gossen's many talents was kicking Mike Farley in the armpit.

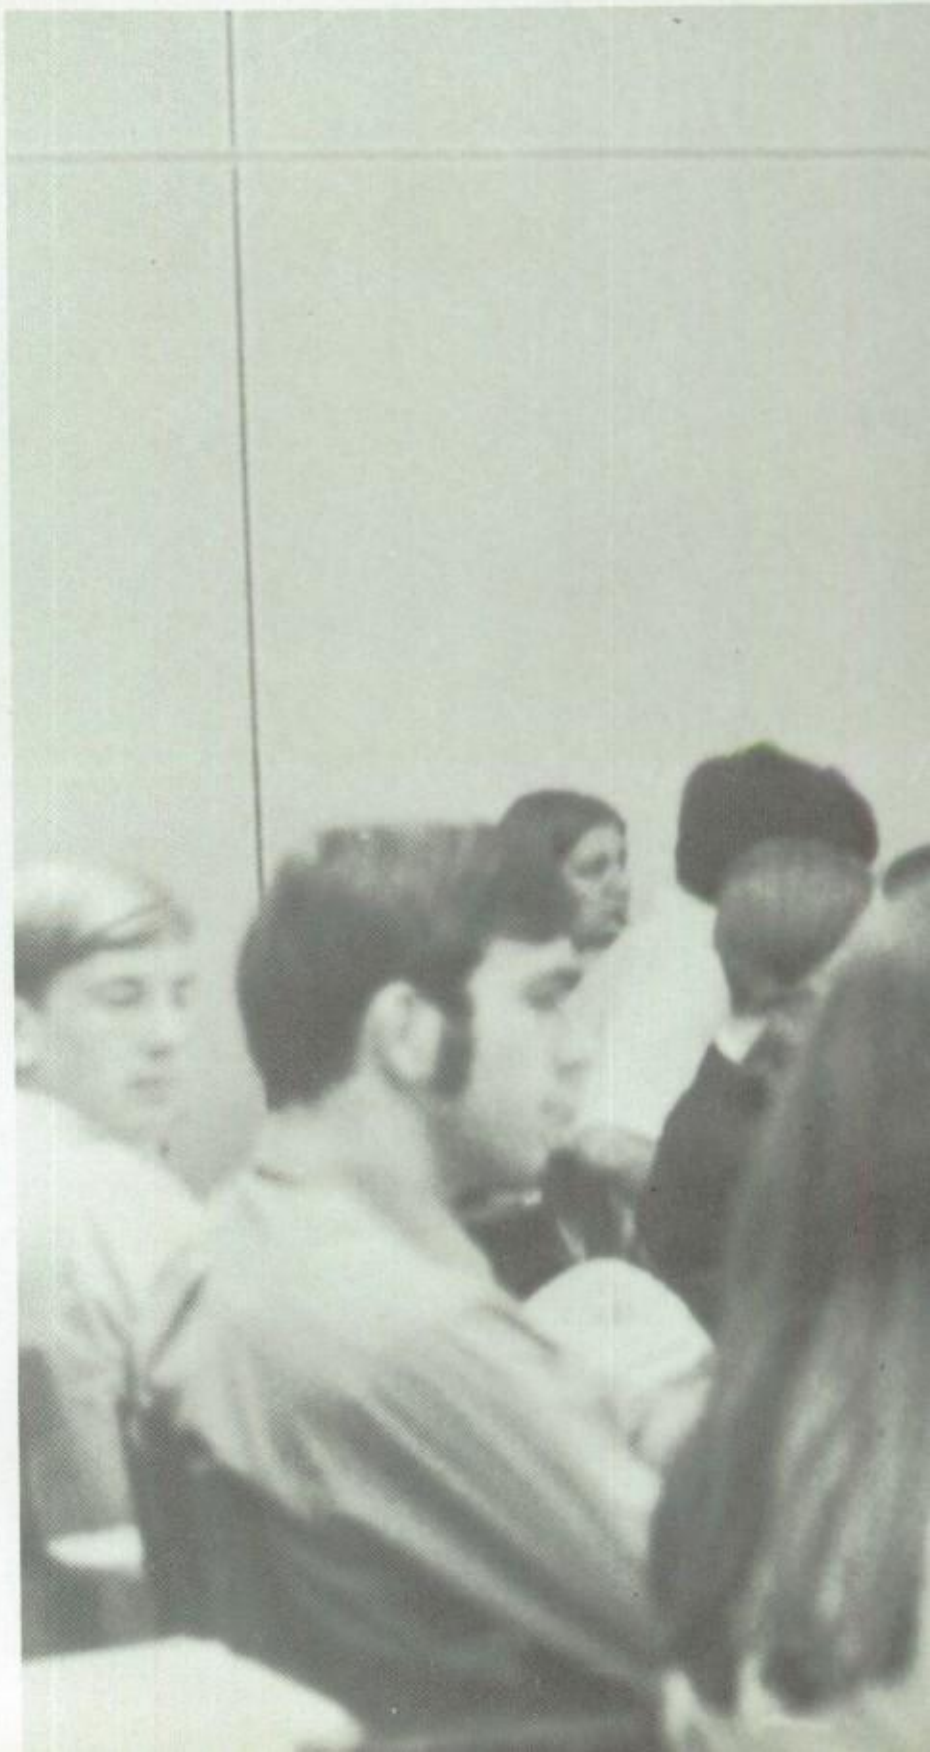

Many of the seniors had musical talent.

A moment of silence and concentration was a rewarding pause.

Milton Henny explained the shrine his group built at retreat.

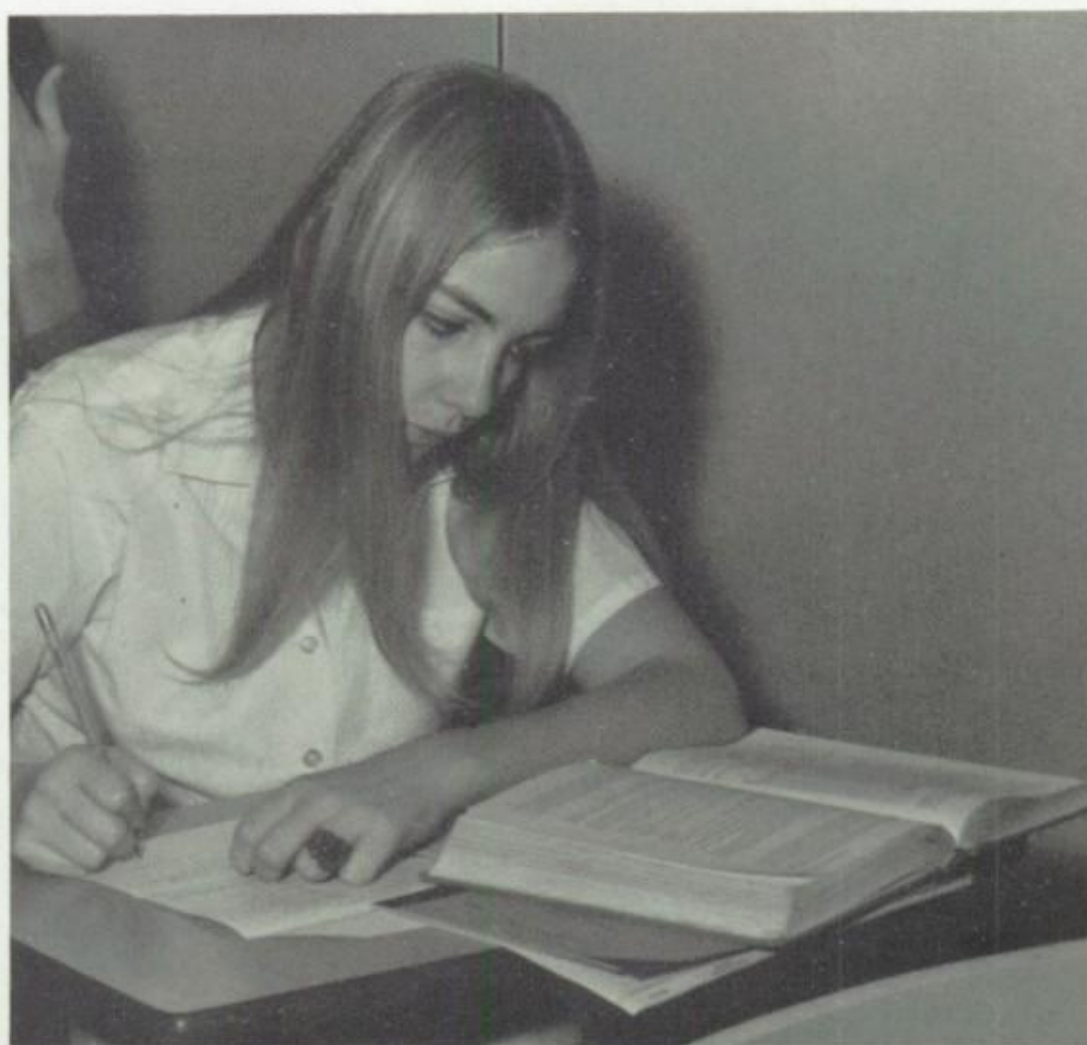

Seniors Set Standards That Will Never Be Surpassed

Now the flag is on the hill.

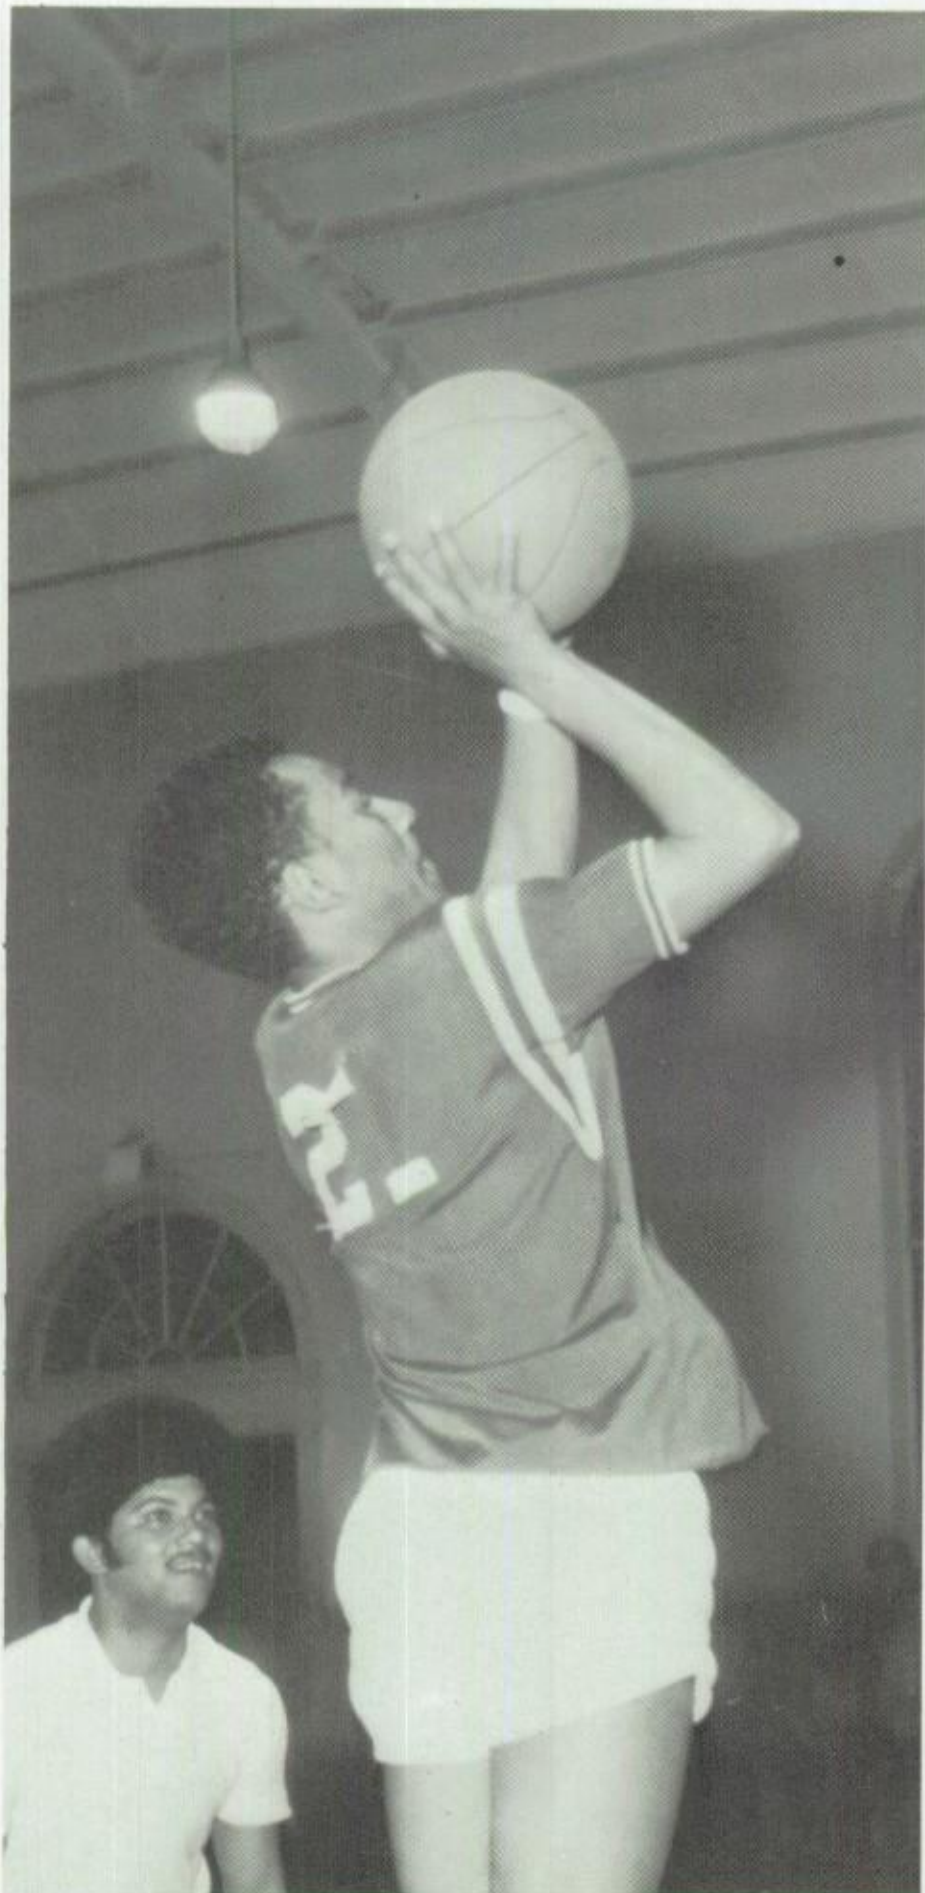

Sometimes in advanced math, two heads were better than one.

Liz Boudreaux pondered another problem.

Homeroom 31 Captures Boys Division.

Wayne Armelin went for a long shot and another two points.

Dean Gossen finished with a total of eighteen points.

Faculty star, "Pistol Pete LeBlanc," made two.

Girls' intramurals were quite exciting and fascinating!

Homerooms 43 And 44 Pulled Through With Girls' Trophy!

Margaret Regan out-jumped her opponent to gain possession.

Students,

Please excuse all mistakes, they were done unintentionally. We've worked hard on this book for you to enjoy and we hope you do. I enjoyed editing this year's book, it was a trying experience. Now that it's over, I feel my crucifixion has ended.
